Christiane Engel, Concert Pianist

Granddaughter of Albert Schweitzer

Christiane's Personal Thoughts:

"My love for Mozart's music started in my early childhood. I still clearly remember, when at the age of six, I first heard Mozart's A Little Night Music. The melodies did not leave my mind. They thoroughly and wonderfully overwhelmed me. Later I realized why I was so deeply moved by Mozart's music; it reflects my ideals of harmony, peace, love, compassion and human understanding and it embraces optimism, hope and a belief in a higher truth and divine spirit.

"It is my hope that by interpreting his music I can help pass on its uplifting joy and healing power. I know of its healing effects, not only as a musician, but also as a medical doctor. Many times I have successfully used Mozart's music to benefit my patients as well as myself. I owe Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart profound gratitude for giving me so much happiness and strength through his music. His extraordinary, beautiful personality, coming to life through his charming and touching letters to his family and friends, add to my strong feeling of closeness to him."

Friends of Mozart:

"The pianist's performance, in true dialogue with the orchestra, are among the finest I have listened to with respect to musicality, capturing the traditional Mozart style with a high degree of sensitivity and technical skill, throughout my longstanding connection with Mozart's works."

Erna Schwerin, President and Founder
Friends of Mozart, Inc., New York, NY

"Your beautiful performance with the Toda Symphony Orchestra still resounds within my heart. I have never heard Mozart played with such rich and kind expression."

Motoyasu Morishita
(Fellow conductor who attended her concert in Tokyo, January 21, 1996.)

An Exceptional Concert
Gursbach, France
April 13, 2003
Christiane Engel with the Stern Quartet Prague

"It was a moment of rare musical quality that people, coming from as far as Germany and Switzerland, had the privilege to attend. The string quartet knew how to enchant... showing their virtuosity. The great moment of the evening was Christiane Engel, playing with exceptional grace and expression the charm of Mozart with much temperament and taste."

"Your playing of Mozart is terrific. Bravo!"
Lukas Foss, Composer, pianist, conductor.

Christiane Engel is available internationally for concert with musical ensembles, including String Quartet and Chamber and Symphony Orchestras.
